APOLOGY

Required of Venezuela—Gunboat Carried Flag of the United States.

Port of Spain, Island of Trinidad—A leading German merchant who recently escaped from Ciudad Bolivar arrived here and made a statement under oath before officers here setting forth that on August 20 the Venezuelan warship Restaurador, when steaming up the Orinoco river for the second time in order to again bombard Ciudad Bolivar, hoisted the American flag in order to be able to reach that city without arousing the suspicions of the inhabitants as to her identity, and that by this strategy the Restaurador reached the custom house at Ciudad Bolivar and immediately opened fire on the center of the city, causing loss of life and damage to property in the quarters inhabited by foreigners. The merchant also stated that the foreign Consuls and all the population of Ciudad Bolivar protested against the actions of the Restaurador.

Two bridges on the English La Guayra-Caracas Railroad were blown up with dynamite by the revolutionists.

REQUIRED TO APOLOGIZE.

Dispatches received at the State Department from Minister Bowen, at Caracas, corroborate the statement made in the above cablegram who reports that he demanded an apology from the Venezuelan Government, and also that the American legation being insulted by the offending ship, and that these terms were promptly complied with.

Coal Trusts.

F. H. Raymond, a leading coal dealer of Boston, Mass., says: "In the East the plain people are to a man behind the President in his attitude against the trusts. The entire country is suffering especially from the position maintained by the coal trusts. You can't mention a single city or town of any size that is not in the throes of a coal famine. In Boston the state of affairs in this respect are acute. A large majority of the dealers are entirely out of coal, and the few that have any left are dealing it out to their favored customers only in one-quarter and one-half ton lots, to keep them going from day to day. "Not a pound of anthracite coal has been received in Boston since the first of June, and the best judges say there is not over 20,000 or 25,000 tons left in the city or its vicinity. This is about a week's consumption, and with coal weather almost upon us and no prospect of getting more coal every thoughtful person is anxious over the outlook. What little coal we have on hand is being sold in small quantities at $12 a ton on the waterfront, with expense of delivery added, and as this sort of fuel is wholly out of the reach of the poorer classes it does not require a vivid imagination to foresee intense suffering this winter."

About Apple Crop.

"Everybody can eat apples this winter," remarked John L. Crosby, of Cincinnati, "for I believe the price will be within the reach of all. For a time there were indications that the crop would reach the record-breaking mark of 1896, which was 69,000,000 bushels, but on a conservative estimate, in the face of conflicting reports, I think it will be fully 50,000,000 bushels, a great production, more than an average, and, if that be true, we can sell them here at $2.50 and 30 cents a bushel."

Backache should never be neglected. It means kidney disorder which, if allowed to run too long, may result in bright's disease, diabetes or other serious and often fatal complaints. Foley's Kidney Cure makes the kidneys well.

WORLD'S END NEAR.

Trusts Will Be Punished in Twenty Years, Says a Prophet.

Taking for his theme the beginning and the end of the world, Rev. Dr. C. H. Woolson preached a remarkable sermon before his congregation in the East Baptist Church, Richmond, Va., Sunday morning. In part he said:

"Let us note a few of the signs of the times, which are signs of the coming end."

"First, the great internal demonstrations—earthquakes, tidal waves, and the like. They are forerunners of the end. When Mt. Pelée sent out its wave of death it was the beginning of the widespread seismic disturbances. Every country except Australia during the last few years has had volcanic disturbances and internal disorders. This has been more widespread than ever before. It is the sign of the end."

"In the second sign the prophecies of the Gospel. It is said that the Gospel would be preached to all the earth. Then cometh the end. This work has been well nigh completed. There are 300 missionary societies and 62,000 missionaries at work in foreign fields. Within five years every point in China will have been reached. Within seven years the remotest corner of Africa will hear the Gospel. In 20 years from now the gospel will have been preached to every creature. Then cometh the end."

"The third sign: Reign of lawlessness; haters of government; Lewd and wicked people, with damnable heresies, were declared by the scriptures, to be the beginning of the end."

"We have trusts great and small, and by their labels and marks command that we shall buy or starve. A few men—13 in number—fix the price per ton in coal. We must pay for it at their price or freeze."

"The Socialist and the infidel join hands, and with their power to denounce God, assassinate rulers, starve the poor and throne the rich and strive to put down everything that is up. This is a sign of the end."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Frost Effects on Tobacco.

Harry Ketchum, the well-known tobacco buyer, is stationed at Carrollton, Ky., with several large tobacco growing counties to look after.

"The reported injury to tobacco by frost," he said, "is not apparent in the section I travel, nor do I believe it applies to North-eastern Kentucky anywhere to any appreciable extent. You know that a few white frosts are good for tobacco, thickening and improving the quality of it. All tobacco men will tell you this. The crop in North-eastern Kentucky and Southern Ohio is a good average one, and in the former state at any rate much superior in quality to that of last year. The corn crop in the counties I travel over, Carroll, Owen, Henry and Trimble, is tremendous, and will yield from 80 to 85 bushels per acre in the bottom lands, the finest they have ever had—two good ears to almost every stock, and the indications are that the farmers will get 40 cents a bushel."

Backache should never be neglected. It means kidney disorder which, if allowed to run too long, may result in bright's disease, diabetes or other serious and often fatal complaints. Foley's Kidney Cure makes the kidneys well.

MONSTROUS SWINDLE.

How the Protective Tariff Kobs the Agricultural Community.

The following letter from Mr. A. B. Farquhar, the head of the great Pennsylvania agricultural works, written to the Farmer's paper published at Quincy, Ill., shows what an honest manufacturer thinks of tariff and its relation to the farmer:

"The fact is that our protective laws are a monstrous swindle upon the agricultural community. As a manufacturer I was inclined to say nothing on the subject, for the reason that it was natural to suppose if anybody was benefited it was the manufacturing class, to which I belong. But as I have explained, the farmer is being destroyed. We are killing the goose that lays the golden egg. And I honestly believe now that it is to the interest of the manufacturers themselves to eliminate the protective feature from our tariff laws."

"Certainly, as our manufactured goods are sold much lower abroad, we could only need protection to get better prices from our customers at home. We do manufacture and sell in Canada, South America and Europe many agricultural machines and implements, and could we have free raw material and the commercial advantages which free trade would give us, America would become the greatest manufacturing emporium of the world, and the farmer, of course, would share the prosperity, since he would have less to pay for everything and get better prices for what he sold. Go on with your good work. When the farmer begins to think and rise up against the swindle it is doomed."

The Beginning of the End.

The withdrawal of Speaker Henderson from the race for Congress is a most extraordinary occurrence. The reason he gives is that his Republican constituents are in favor of the removal of the tariff from trade products and he is opposed to it. No doubt he is right in his diagnosis of the case, and though he had a plurality of over eleven thousand to fall back on he is wise to withdraw.

The truth is that the reaction against class legislation is setting in, and there is a constantly growing protest in the Republican ranks against taxing the many for the benefit of the few. How far it may reach in this election is uncertain, but Mr. Lincoln's axiom, that "you can't fool all the people all the time," is going to be realized before very long.

In fact, there could be no better evidence of this than Mr. Henderson's statement of the condition of sentiment in the Republican party in Iowa. It has been an intensely Republican State and yet it has so far accepted what he calls the "Democratic Doctrine" of free trade, that he feels that he no longer represents the sentiment of his party.

If such a change has come in Iowa what may be looked for elsewhere? And what effect will this demonstration of revolt in Iowa have in opening the eyes of Republicans elsewhere to the injustice and folly of the protective system? Manifestly we are approaching the beginning of an era. The break-up of the Republican party has begun, and the people are commencing to assert that sober second thought which is the accepted measure of popular wisdom.

Speaker Henderson declines to reconsider his withdrawal from the Congressional race.

BIG ALLIGATOR

Cheated of Its Prey by Former Cincinnati Policeman.

While a number of passengers were waiting for the morning train at Pablo Beach today they heard the wail of a child. Jerry Delaney, Deputy Sheriff and a former Cincinnati policeman, headed those who hastened to search for the cause of the cry. A short distance away they saw a big alligator dragging a child away, having secured hold of its dress in its mouth. The child was shrieking. The posse rushed to the rescue and the 'gator redoubled its efforts to get to its bayon nearby. A big dog belonging to the child came running along and dashed at the 'gator's head. The 'gator whacked it all around with great force, dashed the dog against its mouth, which it opened, with a gulp taking in the dog and swilling him with ease.

The 'gator dropped hold of the child's dress in the struggle. The posse at once killed the 'gator. It was 15 feet long. It is thought to have been made fierce by hunger, as it is seldom that they will attack human beings, and especially so near a habitation. The child was uninjured.

INTIMATE FRIEND

Declares That Bryan Will Not Become a Bolter.

The possibility of Bryan bolting the Democratic nomination in 1904, or running independent in case the party does not endorse his views, is scoffed at by associates so close to the former Presidential candidate as to know his aims and intentions almost to the letter. One of those intimates is outspoken in ridiculing the proposition that Bryan may bolt. Succinctly and without equivocation he said:

"Political romancers are wasting their efforts in debating a Bryan bolt; serious people will give it no thought. The idea is of Republican origin or emanates from alleged Democrats who are Republicans in sympathy and could wish for no dearer thing than to see the Democracy hopelessly split."

"But there is no danger of the party refusing to endorse Bryan. It may not reiterate the silver declaration, but Bryan will not insist upon it if the judgment of the majority is against him. The fight is just opening, and before the time comes to name delegates for the 1904 convention Bryan's views will be fully understood that the party, by a large majority, will recognize the fallacious doctrines of his enemies."

"There may be a modification of the platform 1896 or 1900, but the Democrats of the nation cannot be made to eat their words so easily as some would care to make it appear. The convention, beyond a doubt, will be controlled by the friends of Bryan, Democrats who helped to nominate him twice and supported him loyally. If the judgment of such a convention is that the money question should be relegated, Bryan will acquiesce in the will of the majority as heartily and support the ticket as gladly as the best Democrat in the land."

"There are two many issues on which Democrats make common ground, if they really are Democrats, to wage war over silver. Johnson, Olney, Shepherd and scores other Democrats stand for the people as opposed to the interests of favored monopoly, which is the great issue of the day, and if Democrats of the nation choose to look to such a man for his candidate, Bryan will be found in line."

Kentucky's Trotting Carnival.

During the dates of Oct. 7th to 17th, at Lexington, the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association will hold its annual trotting meeting, when $100,000 (almost double the amount offered by any other single association) will be given away in stakes and purses. This event has made Kentucky the horse center of the world, the mecca for all the really great horses that have figured prominently in trotting and pacing classics. For the meeting this fall, the entry lists are larger than ever before, thus insuring a sport of the highest order, and bringing together the world's best trotting and pacers.

With such new features as have been inaugurated by Secretary Shanklin, it is freely predicted that this fall will witness the greatest trotting carnival ever known. The five Cup races for amateur reinsmen have attracted entries from such enthusiasts as C. K. G. Billings, E. E. Smathers, H. K. Devereux, F. G. Jones, C. F. Emery, C. A. Otis and other representatives of the famous driving clubs of New York, Cleveland, Chicago, Pittsburg, Toledo, Detroit, Boston, Syracuse, etc.

FACTS AND OBSERVATIONS

Missionary Convention of Glasgow, Ky.—Statement of Some Work Done.

The writer left home on Monday morning to attend the C. W. B. M. Ky. C. M. C. and State S. C. conventions of the Christian church which met at Glasgow, Ky., Sept. 22-25. Our train from Louisville carried 165 delegates and other trains on same and other days increased the attendance to more than 800. Outside of Glasgow, Glasgow is 101 miles from Louisville and 10 miles from the main line of the L. & N. We can only briefly refer to these conventions. The C. W. B. M. came first—Monday night to Tuesday night. Up to Sept. 1st the auxiliaries amounted to $9,100. The increase and decrease in number of auxiliaries offset each other. The addresses were of a high order, and the routine work of convention interesting. The singing during the three days was led by Leonard Daugherty, assisted by local choir and some visitors. The same officers were re-elected, except that the duties of State Organizer will be dispensed with and future arrangements will be made.

The Ky. C. M. C. occupied all of Wednesday. The pastor, W. M. Baker welcomed the convention. Rev. F. M. Tindler, of Carlisle was president and the writer was secretary. From the report of H. W. Elliott, State Evangelist, we get the following: Receipts from churches, $4,000.37; miscellaneous receipts, 6,648.74; total $10,649.11; men in the field raised for self support, $2,202.50; for local work $11,824.71; total, $14,027.21; total for Kentucky missions, $24,676.32. Our people have given for other missionary work as follows:

For foreign missions, $13,344.75; for general home missions, $6,316.88; for South Ky. missions, $4,930.72; for church extension, $2,661.14; ministerial relief, $924.48; for C. W. B. M., $10,623.06; total for missionary work, other than state, $38,386.03; grand total for all missionary organized, $63,062.35; the grand total for all missionary work organized last year was a net increase this year of $2,876.30.

As a result of evangelistic work there were Baptisms, 1189; reclaimed, by letter and from other sources; 1056; churches aided, 313. The Baptisms recorded in last year's minutes were 634.

No records were kept of dismissions.

The sessions were crowded with business and fine addresses.

The officers for the ensuing year are: President, Lloyd Darlie, Paris; First Vice President, George Gowan, Louisville; Secretary, H. C. Garrison, Danville; Recording Secretary, Bruce Trimble, Mt. Sterling; Assistant Secretary, G. W. Kemper, Midway;

State Evangelist, H. W. Elliot, Sulphur.

The only change in executive board was the addition of W. H. Allen instead of J. J. Spencer.

The State Sunday-school convention occupied all of Thursday. During the past year there has been a revival of interest in this important work. Interesting program including addresses was given. The attendance till close of convention was maintained. The labors of R. M. Hopkins, evangelist, were highly satisfactory. During the past year he visited 37 counties; held 50 institutes with an aggregate of 255 sessions; preached 63 sermons, made 32 talks and addresses; organized 9 Sunday schools and re-organized 8; organized 25 other meetings and societies; collected enough money to pay all expenses and turn in to treasurer in cash $521.99, in pledges $51.09 and for additional purposes in field about $160.00. The outlook is full of encouragement and he will be continued in the work. The president for the ensuing year is Rev. C. W. Dick, of North Middletown. Our report of these conventions would have been fuller if we had had sufficient time. We reached home Friday night and on Saturday morning we draw near Ashland, Ky., enroute to Johnson and Magoffin counties close these notes.

The writer and F. M. Tindler, of Carlisle, president of Ky. C. M. C. were cordially entertained by Mr. A. L. Harris and wife. If all were received as graciously and hospitably as were we, all delegates would be pleased with their stay at Glasgow. We can not now tell of the town and facts pertaining thereto.

A carriage in which Mrs. Martin and Miss Arnold of our city and Mrs. Mosley of Cynthiana, were riding, was run into by a runaway team of horses hitched to a road wagon. One carriage wheel was torn off and Mrs. Mosley was thrown full length in the muddy street, spilling a silk waist. Many delegates went to Mammoth Cave on Friday.

Probably more at another time.

Mr. R. H. Swaffield, expert cutter for The Globe Tailoring Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, will be with me Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, October 6, 7 and 8, with the most complete and up-to-date line of samples in the piece for fall and winter clothes ever before shown here. Bopkins Strong in Pike.

Special from Pikeville, Ky.:

The Hon. F. A. Hopkins, Democratic candidate for Congress, spoke at Pikeville to a large crowd of interested Democrats and Republicans. Mr. John G. White, the Republican candidate was here but did not ask for a division of time, although it was tendered him. He came into the court house by a rear door after the speaking began and took a seat behind Mr. Hopkins, who did not observe him for some time. When Hopkins saw White he asked him if he intended to speak, to which White answered he did. The time of each was then agreed to, which spoiled the little Republican game. The plan had been to all Mr. Hopkins to finish his speech; then the Republican candidate for Judge and Commonwealth's Attorney were to take the floor and speak in their own interests, after which Mr. Hopkins was to speak, closing too late for Mr. Hopkins to reply. This plan, for Mr. White's good, should not have been changed, for no public speaker ever more completely exposed his ignorance of public questions than did Mr. White.

Mr. Hopkins spoke in strong and scathing terms of the methods of the trusts, and said if the criminal feature of the law was enforced against the men who form them it would do much to suppress them. In answer to this Mr. White said he was opposed to punishing them as criminals, and that he was in favor of the trusts as long as they did right; that if we made war on them they would lock up their money and let the country go to the bad. In fact, the burden of White's speech was in favor of trusts and corporations. One of his most ridiculous statements was that elected he would have a constitutional amendment adopted, giving the Confederate soldiers a pension and taking care of their dead. He also said as soon as he was elected he would visit all the counties and send for the Union soldiers to come in and he would examine them concerning their condition and have all their pensions increased.

One Republican was heard to say publicly as the crowd left the courthouse: "Our man has lost 200 votes by trying to speak today, and I am going to vote for Hopkins." Other similar expressions were heard.

The joint meeting was a great hit for the Democrats, and no doubt will result in the county going for Hopkins, who is unusually strong here with both parties.

Just going to Cincinnati, Louisville, New York or some other place, for a few days. Well you might not get hurt, but remember an accident ticket only costs 25c a day plus $12.50 a week if you are injured.

Found Herself Gray.
Miss Mary Alexander, a mountain lady, living near Middleboro, Ky., sustained an injury to her head about twenty years ago which so affected her mind that her parents felt that they could not trust her to perform any household duties. Her mind seemed to be a blank, and she apparently took no cognizance of current events. The other night, however, she started to go to the spring, when her father and another man became engaged in a violent quarrel near by. The woman ran into the house in a fright and fell, swooning. When she recovered she was in her right mind. She had no recollection of what had passed during her malady, her last remembrance being of the time when a stone struck her. She thought she had been unconscious for a few days, and was surprised to find herself gray.

Low Round Trip Rates to Washington—Account G. A. R.

On account of the Grand Army Reunion at Washington, D. C., the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway will sell round trip tickets from Lexington, Ky., at $11.55, and at correspondingly low rates from all other points. Tickets will be sold on October 3, 4, 5 and 6, and will be good to return until November 3, if desired.

Extensive preparations are being made by the Government authorities in Washington to decorate and illuminate the Capitol in the most gorgeous manner.
Low rate excursion tickets will be sold from Washington during the reunion to all battlefields and eastern cities between Norfolk and New York.

The C. & O. will have two fast trains each way with finest sleeping car, coach and dining car service, traversing more historic country than any other line.

For full information or sleeping reservation see any ticket agent at G. W. BARNEY, D. P. A., Lexington, Ky.

A report from Supt. J. C. Gluck, Reform School, Pruntytown, W. Va., Oct. 18th, 1900. "After trying all other advertised cough medicines we have decided to use Foley's Honey and Tar exclusively in the West Virginia Reform School. I find it most effective and absolutely harmless."

Any Kind Of a Ripple Does it.

The condition of the money market and the news from the President last week sorely caused a violent break in stocks, and there was a rush to sell.

Mrs. T. Bridgeman of Parshallville, Mich., was troubled with salt rheum for thirteen years and had tried a number of doctors without relief. After two applications of Banner Salve, her hands became better and in a short time she was entirely cured. Beware of substitutes.

Which?

All the union tailors of the city of Louisville, are out on what they call a strike, but what the employers call a lockout. The trouble is caused by a demand for an increased wage scale.

Natural Anxiety.

Mothers regard approaching winter with uneasiness, children take cold so easily. No disease costs more little lives than croup. Its attack is so sudden that the sufferer is often before human aid before the doctor arrives. Such cases yield readily to One Minute Cough Cure. Liquifies the mucus, allays inflammation, removes danger. Absolutely safe. Acts immediately. Cures coughs, colds, grip, bronchitis, all throat and lung trouble. F. S. McMahon, Hampton, Ga.: "A bad cold rendered me voiceless just before an oratorical contest. I intended to withdraw but took One Minute Cough Cure. It restored my voice in time to win the medal."

Forty Years' Torture.

To be relieved from a torturing disease after 40 years' torture might well cause the gratitude of anyone. That is what DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve did for C. Haney, Geneva, O. He says: "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me of piles after I had suffered 40 years." Cures cuts, burns, wounds, skin diseases. Beware of counterfeits.

Railroad News.

The plans for merging the Louisville & Nashville into the Atlantic Coast Line of Connecticut are believed to have been approximately consummated. The Atlantic Coast Line has a capital stock of $30,000,000, and in its functions is similar to the Northern Securities Company. The result of the merger will be, it is said, to create to competing systems of railroads in the South. President Williams, of the Seaboard Air Line, says that if the merger results in unfriendly discrimination on the part of the Louisville and Nashville with any connecting roads, it will result in new railroads being built into its territory. And in this connection he says that such railroads can be built at a much cheaper cost than the price paid for the Louisville and Nashville.

The $6,000 Transylvania.

The Transylvania, won in the past by such noted horses as Onward Silver 2:08, Boralima 2:07, Lord Vincent 2:08, John Nolan 2:07, Rima 2:09, Azote 2:04, Keelin 2:07, Boaner 2:09, etc., will this year be contested by perhaps the best class of horses ever started in a single trotting event. The value of the race this season will be $6,000, and as it is looked upon as the greatest of all trotting classics, lending a life time reputation to its winner, the honor of winning it is keenly coveted by all horsemen and drivers.

Forty races for $100,000 will be contested in the ten days from Oct. 7th to 17th, and all roads entering Lexington will be put on excursion rates.

Residence Rate Lowered.

The Board of Underwriters have given notice that Mt. Sterling residence rate has been reduced about one-third and the risk rate near one-half. This will be good news to Mt. Sterling property owners. For instance, A rate heretofore $1.00 would be near 70 cents, and on a $5,000 policy the saving $15.00. This cut rate, as we understand it, is due to the better fire protection on account of our water plant. Rating on other property will follow soon.

Mt. Sterling School.

The first month of the Mt. Sterling High School has closed and it is gratifying to note the advancement in each grade. Patron and visitors of the county and city are extended an invitation to call at any time to suit their pleasure and observe the neatness, the order and methods of instruction. The attendance for September 1902 is seven more than September of last year.

X Ray.

Our people are ever up with the progress in science. Our local physicians are not behind those of other cities in securing every means by which the afflicted may receive the best treatment. Evidence of this Dr. R. Q. Drake has added the German X Ray machine. Dr. Jer man the manufacturer of this machine was here Saturday and demonstrated the powers of this machine before a number of professional men in the office of Drs. Drake and Thompson.

En Route.

The Mt. Sterling Water, Light & Ice Co. are in receipt of notice of the shipment of material for the completion of their stand-pipe to 150 feet. The contractor will be here as soon as it is received and will hurry it up, completing it by January 1, as per agreement with the city.

The Royal Soap Co. has advanced their Royal Cuticle Soap to 10c per cake or three for 25c. This soap was put on sale a few months ago at a price far less than it could be manufactured to introduce it. It is a fine toilet soap and its medicinal qualities, together with the cheapness of the price, it goes without saying it will be the most popular soap on the market. Sold by Ed. Mitchell, The Hardwareman.

Burned.

Tom Clark, alias Will Gibbons, a negro, was burned at the stake in Corinth, Miss., for the assault on and murder of Mrs. Carey Whitfield. The burning was postponed a day at the request of the prisoner, who wanted to see his mother and brother. At the stake he said he deserved the fate prepared for him. The husband and brother of his victim started the fire.

A Big Business.

When Woodson Shroat came to this city in 1899 from Bath county as successor of John W. Miller, because of his attentiveness to business and his native and trained ability becoming a skilled mechanic, it was predicted that he would grow with the city. An upright citizen, offspring of a worthy parentage, he has toiled hard and continuously and today he has one of the best equipped machine shops in Kentucky and with the same growth three years hence his shops will have assumed wonderful proportions.

He gives personal supervision to every order sent to his shop and he has grown popular with his people because he has given perfect work at reasonable prices. His advertisement is in another column and to it we call special attention.

Chas. R. Weesman, Evanston, Ill., writes: "My boy 2 1/2 years old had a severe cold which refused to yield to any treatment until we tried Foley's Honey and Tar. He was completely cured before using one bottle." Take none but Foley's.

At Home Mt. Sterling, Ky.

Chester A. Shaw and Miss Addie Green, both of Nicholas county, were married at the County Clerk's office on Monday. Rev. H. D. Clark officiating.

As previously announced in the Advocate Mr. M. C. Clay, of this city, was married to Miss Bernice, daughter of Abner Hall, of Bowen, Powell county, Sept. 24. The officiating clergyman was Rev. H. D. Clark, of this city. It was a very quiet, though beautiful and impressive wedding and immediately following the ceremony Mr. Clay and wife left for a visit to friends in Michigan, but because of an accident they returned home Monday and are at Mr. Clay's brother's. Those who attended the wedding from here were J. Will Clay and wife, Miss Elizabeth Clay, daughter of the groom, Miss Lucy Clay, Mrs. Sallie Owens and daughter, Miss Lucy, Drs. C. B. and F. C. Duerison, and Abner Clay, wife son and daughter, of Kiddville. For the past few years Mr. Clay has been in the timber business in Eastern Kentucky, in which he has been fortunate in landing some profitable deals. He is a good business man with strong affections and will be to his wife, a kind affectionate, model husband. Mrs. Clay is a very stylish woman of fine native ability, well trained in the schools, modest and refined and is sure to make Mr. Clay the model wife he so richly deserves. We extend congratulations.

R. B. Emmons and Miss Martha Crawford, R. E. Williams and Miss Etta Rawlings, all of Hillsboro, Fleming county, Rev. W. J. Holin officiating were married at the National Hotel Wednesday last.

ARNOLD-JONES.

This afternoon at the home of the bride, Rev. H. D. Clark, officiating, Miss Margaret Hoy, only daughter of Henry Jones and wife, will be married to Mr. John Will Arnold, of the firm of Rice & Arnold, shoes and men's furnishings, of Richmond, Ky. Mr. Arnold and wife will leave on the 4:10 C. & O. for his home in Richmond. Though a quiet home wedding it will be really a beautiful golden rod wedding. The porches, parlors, halls and reception rooms will be artistically decorated. The wedding march will be rendered by Miss Lottie Fogg and the attendants will be Mr. Burton Farris, of Richmond, and Mr. James Jones, brother of the bride. Fortunate is Mr. Arnold in securing Miss Jones, for his life partner. She is not known merely as a beautiful, cultured character, the true woman though all of this but a woman with noble deeds shining out, dispelling the gloom to hearts wherever she goes. The Kentucky Christian Endeavor people have been more favorably known by the affiliation of this woman. The prisoners have written from their gloomy cells, giving expressions of gratitude for the kind words spoken and the soul inspiring tracts left. To her church she has been a benediction and to her Sunday School class a living example of unobtruding deeds. Her home has always been one of cheer and it was the daughter who contributed her part. Yes, happy the man who has won her for his bride. As Miss Jones is at home in her church and the Endeavor work, so is Mr. Arnold; of one thought in doctrines, truly congenial, their Accident.

On last Thursday evening M. C. Clay, wife and daughter were in Cincinnati and started out for an evening drive. The driver failing to see an approaching street car was run into and the horses becoming frightened ran away. The women were very much frightened and attempted to jump from the flying vehicle. Mr. Clay stood on the outside step to see that the way was clear, hoping the driver would get the horses under control and at the same time he held the door to prevent the women from jumping. Mrs. Clay jumped from the opposite door and sustained severe bruises and was not otherwise injured. Mr. and Mrs. Clay are at the home of J. Will Clay. She is suffering from nervousness, but the physician thinks she will be restored soon.

WAKING
At midnight's quiet waking,
Or with falling of the rain,
To wake-to feel the morning
Life, the cup of life again.
To brush the web of dreaming
And the spell of sleep aside,
To hear the bird sing
At the turning of the tide;
Whatever be the hiding
Of the ship consigned to thee,
To cheer the hope undying
Of each sail upon the sea;
To feel the cold earth wetting
On her axis 'neath the feet,
To hear ever singing
To the time her pulses beat;
To dare the chance of sorrow
In the joy of waking, now:
Command me, brave God-Morrow:
Alas! alas, new To-Day!

TWO PEOPLE WHO MET.

BY S. RHETT ROMAN.
Fergus McLean suppressed a yawn—he was undeniably bored—and turned to get a better view of the sea.

This afternoon it was a vicious look, and because the sky was obscured by clouds, which had been drifting up from the southeast for the past 24 hours, its color was tawny, and the white caps, appearing and disappearing as fast as the eye could see, appeared doubly white by contrast.

The tide was rising rapidly and the surf asserting itself and its importance in louder tones as it crept up over the gray beach, while shrill gusts from the sea, which swept occasionally over the dwarfed cabs and rustling palm trees of the Isle of Palms, gave their usual warning.

Tompkins, manager of an airy wooden structure, the Seashore hotel, built in Italian style, just beyond the reach of the tides, frowned and looked disgusted as he paused in the hallway and looked out at the red gleam of the sun, the rolling bank of clouds, dun colored, and the scurrying flight of seagulls, and listened to the ominous beat of the breakers on the beach.

Great preparations had been made for a gala night at the Isle of Palms. Chinese lanterns festooned the dancing hall, between the pillars and electric lights, and three many-hued and softened glimmers over the broad piazza, where sofas and chairs, apparently scattered in careless confusion, were securely fastened to the flooring.

Long rows of palms in boxes and the dark-leaved, robust myrtles of the island gave a needed touch of color to the ballroom and corridor and great bunches of pink and white oleanders, which grow and thrive so luxuriantly among the sand hills and shifting dunes of picturesque Long Island smiled a poetic greeting to all comers.

Through an open archway the supper room was visible. White-aproned waiters harried, and driven by sharp orders, were methodically completing their work.

The musicians of the field band of the First artillery, grouped on a stand in the dancing hall, were leisurely turning their instruments and getting ready for the concert, which seemed to make the wind laugh shrilly as it swept up from the sea, brushing the scent of oleander over McLean as it passed.

Fergus wondered why the recollection of the child his father had adopted years ago should come back to him so vividly this lowering summer evening?

Perhaps because her smile was as radiant sometimes as the distant lightning flashes over James Island, and her dark eyes as menacing and magnificent as the coming storm across the sea.

McLean had heard next to nothing in recent years of Aunt Fannie and her "tempestuous undertaking," as he laughingly described the orphan she brought to her luxurious home to brighten it.

"She's poor, old Cousin Tom's daughter, but her mother was a Russian—my dear aunt. In adopting Olga you must remember you are taking to your placid bosom the impetuosity and other strange characteristics of a race you know nothing about."

"Just look at her eyes and you will see that the child is volcanic," McLean had warned his aunt, laughingly.

Nevertheless, for some years after her arrival he and Olga had grown to be fast friends, he assuming the role of defender and adviser, and Olga occupying that of—

Well, the longer Fergus dwelt on the past, and called up the strange fascinating face of the child which promised untold possibilities, for beauty or the reverse, the less was he able to define and classify Cousin Tom's daughter.

His last recollection of her was of a thin, girlish face, deathly pale, watching his departure from the hall door, as he jumped in his aunt's carriage and drove off to catch an ocean liner, waiting at her wharf for passengers and freight, and he remembered being struck by the beauty of her dark eyes and of the auburn hair piled high above them. Perhaps it was the golden brown tint of the hair which made her look so strikingly white on that early September day, seven years ago.

McLean yawned again, because there seemed to be "nothing else to do."

The settling of some family business had called him back to the old town where his youth had been passed, and the habit acquired abroad of going to hear good music whenever the opportunity offered had brought him over to the Isle of Palms to-night for the concert of a well-trained German musician, who made up the First artillery band.

"The storm will ruin the whole thing," grumbled Tompkins, as he came up and stood by McLean, seeking sympathy. "I would have had 5,000 people out here to-night if the weather had held good. There's a party of swell strangers in town, some foreigners, a Russian countess and her suite. They've ordered supper and wines, and a lot of folks were coming over just to see them. But I'm afraid this sou'll—"

A puff of wind sent Tompkins' hat rolling down the length of the piazza and he in pursuit, cutting short his confidential plan.

McLean was not sorry that he was to have the garlanded ballroom and German music all to himself, and lazily reflected that he would also fall heir to those wines Tompkins referred to, as also the soft-shell crabs and other good things. He felt sure the intendment of Mme. la Comtesse had taken care to provide for herself and party.

Some straggling groups were wandering about, and McLean heard laughter and voices from the flying horses in a pavilion close by.

A gay party of clubmen, just in on a private car from the city, sauntered toward the brightly decorated restaurant, bent on a little fish dinner evidently.

Fergus McLean realized that 12 years' absence had made him a stranger in the pleasant, old-fashioned town, for he recognized none of them.

The band started playing the wild and fascinating overture of "Carmen," and a few couples strolled through the empty, brilliantly-lit ballroom.

Outside the sea rose higher, and the surf beat more gloriously as it reared the steps of the long row of white bath-houses, and Olga's face, as he had last seen it, rose before Fergus, with a strange, mocking persistence.

Fergus McLean began to find the evening rather interesting, and liked the contrast of the darkening golf outside, with the festive air of hotel seashore, its club dinners, and the best of the music of "Carmen."

"Storm's coming up," Tompkins remarked, as he hurried by, the whistle of the trolley car having announced its arrival, and the entrance of a group of people showed that they had come to the Isle of Palms indifferent to wind and tempest.

They paused, close to where Fergus McLean sat, and were gaily animated, discussing the possibility of a plunge into the surf before the storm broke. The champion of the party, gray-haired and fashionably attired, protested vehemently.

A tall, admirably proportioned girl, laughingly declared it would be glorious, and clearly intended to have her way about it. She turned and the light from the ballroom fell full upon her, showing a very beautiful face, whose dark eyes and light hair seemed somehow familiar to Fergus. He was quite sure he recognized pretty Kitty Carrington and her companion, whom he had last seen in the Bois, in Paris.

The men, Charlie Carrington, and another, were clamorous for a battle with the waves. A gray-haired, elderly man stood aloof. They won the fight, Fergus judged, as the group broke up, and their voices died away.

The breakers rolled up and thundered and ran hissing under the steps of the bathhouses and the wind whistled in shrill derisive glee.

"Who are they? You are not going to allow those young women to go out surf bathing in the face of this gale?" McLean said to Tompkins, who was going quickly by, as he himself walked down the piazza toward the steps.

"That's the countess and a lot of swells. I can't stop 'em if they choose to risk it. I said all I could to stop 'em. I'll have a boat ready in case any of 'em are swept out to sea. It's the blame piece of foolishness. I told the old gentleman so. He's her husband. But he don't seem to care."

Where had Fergus seen that face, or one like it, only not with those contours and that splendid coloring? And what a figure!

Fergus went down the steps, being pushed back by the wind, now almost a gale, skirted the hotel, and reached the bathhouses just as Kitty and the tall young woman ran out in the surf and the men joined them.

All but the tall, military-looking man, who, like Fergus, stood where the breakers died on the shingle and watched them.

Fergus caught sight of some one in the door of the bathhouse wringing her hands.

Tompkins, anxious and indignant, stood with a knot of men near a small boat—whose existence in such a sea would be problematical—and gradually a small crowd gathered as the breakers tossed or submerged the bathers at their capricious will, one lifting up Kitty and her companion, rolled and tossed them up on the sand, where Kitty lay faint and sobbing.

"I knew it!" Tompkins exclaimed, as a wild call for help pierced the dull roar and clamor of the surf and the wild whistle of the wind.

The boat was run in the water, and with desperate effort and struggle taken through the towering billows toward the group still fairly visible aloft.

Fergus found himself side by side with the tall, silent stranger, biding frantically to keep the frail craft aloft.

The undertow was sweeping them out, but she was making a brave effort to keep above water when they reached her.

Seeing over they caught her as a billow was sweeping her by, and the two men, catching hold of the boat, pulled themselves in.

She lay half fainting, while the gray-haired man spoke rapidly in tender tones, if incomprehensible language, while Tompkins forced her to swallow some of the contents of a flask.

Charlie Carrington and the other man were joking.

"We will land in the cove. The surf is lower there. But we'll get a good ducking," Tompkins said, evidently relieved that no tragedy was to mar the popularity of Seashore hotel, and the Isle of Palms, where palm-trees and oleanders grow, and the Atlantic rolls its majestic imperious billows on a long, low beach.

An hour later Fergus McLean stood waiting in the ballroom for the woman he and the gray-haired foreigner had rescued from death, having been urged to join them at supper.

She was startlingly beautiful as she came forward to greet him, and it was the fascination of her smile and the glory of her eyes which made him recognize her.

"I knew you at once," she said, introducing him to her husband.

"You must remember how I used to worship you. I was truly and really heartbroken when you went away," she said, gaily, as she went toward the supper room.

"How immensely glad I am to see you!" Kitty declared, ecstatically. "When one has nearly been drowned one feels like embracing all one's friends."

"I knew it was folly, but I never had the heart to contradict Olga," Fergus' aunt said, gazing fondly at the glorious young woman, who was whispering gaily to her companion.

"She's perfectly happy," she said, confidentially, to Fergus.

McLean fell to thinking how his aunt had wanted him to fall in love with and marry Olga, and wondered how it was that he had failed to do so.—N. O. Times-Democrat.

Heroic Monkey.

A Paris monkey named Albert is the hero of a thrilling story from that city. A fire broke out in its mistress's house, and the monkey, scenting the smoke and becoming alarmed, managed to open a window, climb down a waspnet to the porter's lodge, and give the alarm. The porter went up, broke open the door, and was just in time to prevent the lady being suffocated by the fumes. Albert is quite the hero of the district.
